The NEW EFRA Dynamic Ranking How it works?

Hello My RC friends

We have released, following a decision made at the past EFRA AGM our NEW Dynamic Ranking System.

It counts the last 5 big international official events EFRA has taken part, this means the last 2 IFMAR World Championships and the last 3 EFRA European Championships up to date.

The latest event of each kind will count as 100 % of their value, the points value has always been there at EFRA rules: <https://www.efra.ws/rules-regulations/handbook/>, more precisely at page 18 & 19 out of 134 of the EFRA Handbook 2018.

The previous to the latest one will count as a 50 % of the point chart value and the oldest, the EFRA EC back 3 years ago, will count only as 25 % of its value. The charts out of the events are published at <http://www.efra.ws>

Why is it dynamic? Because it evolves as racing evolves, older results are substituted by new ones and the specific weight of each one evolves as well as time passes.

EFRA has extended the Dynamic Ranking up to 100 drivers, to make it useful for ALL organizers, mainly the EFRA related ones. Now you have a REAL list of results updated and counting out of Official events.

Obviously if you don't take part in the Official Races of the Class you are not counted or your results may drop drastically if one of your best results is taken out of consideration due to the evolution of the results, i.e., Naxos results had been replaced and there Mr. Martin Bayer had an excellent 5th position, not counting any longer that event joined to his decision to help his friends at Perth has caused his 14 positions drop at the EFRA Ranking.

On the other hand, other drops, the smaller ones, are mainly caused by someone surpassing you, if someone goes higher than you obviously you are dropping back at least the position the other one has improved.

The EFRA Dynamic Ranking might be useful as well for Industry and Sponsorship, there is something fair to pay attention to. Here is the compare among the latest 2 EFRA Dynamic Rankings with its evolution:
